While not much of importance was known during this time period, Harry discovered a very dangerous secret; a potion called the True Philosopher's Stone.[2] While the information and information Voldemort did collect became his main source of power, the most important fact that was yet to be discovered were the facts that he had survived the war and had managed to turn a large proportion of the wizarding world into complete idiots. Not only that, I didn't even know about the other books, the wizarding world didn't know very much about the war with Voldemort. And now I'm about to get to some interesting facts that you do and don't know, so lets begin." —Ron's analysis of the war..
